Meeting Individual Needs

Today, hundreds of men and women receive support from our May Centers. Many of the adults we serve have special needs related to autism or other developmental disabilities. Some individuals also have physical or mental health concerns such as visual impairments or behavior disorders. Regardless of their needs, we offer environments and support to nurture and help each person reach his or her true potential.

■ DAY HABILITATION PROGRAMS

Our programs provide individualized support for adults, including those with complex medical needs. We combine medical monitoring—including nursing, physical, occupational, and speech therapies—with daily living skills training and active community involvement.

Day services also include volunteer activities, social skills training, communication skills development, and behavior management.

■ COMMUNITY AND SHARED LIVING

May Centers support a wide variety of community-based living options for adults with developmental disabilities. Our services range from semi-independent apartments, to group homes with 24-hour supervision, to shared living arrangements with families or housemates.

Staff members actively encourage individuals to become involved in the daily activities of community living to the fullest extent possible. With support and encouragement, residents participate in planning meals, shopping, cleaning, and recreational activities. Our staff also provide assistance with skills development, individualized healthcare, and behavioral therapies.

■ EMPLOYMENT TRAINING AND SUPPORTED EMPLOYMENT

We offer a suite of employment and education services with varying levels of support based on the individualized needs and interests of the job seeker.

Supported employment services are for adults with some job history, internship, or volunteer experience who have identified their career interests. Customized employment helps pinpoint a job seeker's interests, and then identifies prospective job duties and employers. Soft skills training is designed for employed adults who require support to help acclimate to the workplace.

■ INTEGRATED AUTISM SERVICES

Our Center for Integrated Adult Autism Services offers a continuum of critical services and supports to men and women with a diagnosis of ASD, or with a dual diagnosis of ASD and a co-occurring disorder.

Service plans may include a combination of clinical and therapeutic supports, employment services, and housing opportunities. Our goal is to equip individuals with the skills, resources, and supports they need to live and work successfully in their communities. These services are offered by May Institute in collaboration WORK Inc.
